. [ ]. . I was working in a small ISP in a remote city where everybody was switching to MS Office 2007, so the IM clients were quickly replaced. Â .Q: Is there an api on google cloud to check which google compute instances are created with the different avilable types? We are using google cloud for some development tasks which is working fine. We want to have a gcloud task deployed on GKE to find out if the tasks are running on particular zones and their type. Is there any api or debug mode in gcloud that can provide us this information? A: You can use the gcloud compute instances list command and with it you can filter by zone. Also, from within the VM you can run the gcloud compute instances list command to list your instances and zones. // Copyright (c) 2012, the Dart project authors.
