In addition to the cache's contents being displayed, the program allows you to view the entries stored in the Windows cache in a tabular form. Browsing the cache is easy: You just need to click the "Show Cache" button to display the cache as well as the button to flush it. The program also provides some important information that is related to the

cache's format including the total number of cached records, their types, and the Time to Live that acts as the period of time

Windows sets the cache before automatically flushing it. Flushing the cache is the main functionality of the application and can be done through the "Flush Cache" option located on the top of the tabular section. You can also choose the size of the cache to be flushed in order to free up some space on your computer. Sometimes, DNS cache could become corrupted or could get polluted with malicious DNS records. The program provides a convenient way to identify DNS records that are not part of the DNS cache and then either simply delete them or flush them away manually. patients attending eye clinics at seven private eye hospitals in Ghana between June 2004 and May 2005 were recruited. Individual patient charts were reviewed to assess the demographic characteristics, duration of symptoms, type of treatment and clinician's management. The cost of treatment was computed and used for cost analysis. Two hundred and fifty-nine patients were recruited. The most common predisposing factors were trauma, 82 (32.1%), and various adnexal diseases (45.8%). The commonest corneal disorder was ocular trauma (45.7%) followed by keratoconus (27.0%), infectious keratitis (12.3%) and iatrogenic post-refractive surgery corneal ectasia (6.2%). The median cost of treatment for corneal trauma was US$ 29 (range US$ 20-90) for rural, and US$ 70 (range US$ 20-350) for urban private hospitals. During 2003, corneal trauma accounted for approximately 60% of the eye hospital admissions in Ghana. The cost of treatment of individual corneal disorders varied widely. The cost for treating trauma ranged from US$ 20- 6a5afdab4c

DNS Cache Viewer is a cache cleaner/viewer utility which effectively blocks unknown and suspicious domain names in your DNS cache. It unblocks the domain names found in the DNS cache by updating the corrupted records and clearing any entries that are not accessed regularly. The program's intuitive interface and user-friendly operation will make it easy for anyone to use. Any DNS cache cleaner will come with a graphical interface. DNS Cache Viewer comes with a simple interface with a few buttons and a menu bar at the bottom. With just a few clicks you will be able to view the cache, clear the contents, make it expire, and much more. The program comes in both 32-bit and 64-bit versions and can be downloaded as a zip file, which includes both the installer and uninstaller. DNS Cache Viewer will check DNS cache for new and deleted entries and clear them if needed. It will also notify you if any other DNS cache cleaner is active and when it will expire. DNS Cache Viewer can also be used to fix problem with internet connection. If you have DNS problems, you can clean your DNS cache and try again. DNS Cache Viewer will update the DNS cache and notify when files has been cleaned. Edit3 Comments I think you should have taken a look at the Internet Services Tab in the Control Panel. I wouldn't say it's a sticky program, but it's better than opening up regedit and editing the keys manually every time you see a strange domain name appearing. Why would you delete that cookies.dat file? Cookies aren't even saved by default on windows unless there is a reason for it to do so. After all, it doesn't try to save any cookies on my PC. They go into your 'trusted zone', and can actually be used to maintain a secure and private browsing experience. While it might be preferable to have this information hardcoded into an application or the browser, the fact is, browsers and the Operating Systems we use, are just too complex and unstable to be trusted with that kind of information. It would be far easier and safer for us to maintain it ourselves. I'd recommend using something like ZoneEdit to set the relevant zones and the things you'd like it to monitor. If you just want to delete the file with the current information from it, you can use the simple code I've posted below.
