Status of hepatocellular carcinoma in India. Hepatocellular carcinoma (HCC) is the sixth most common cancer and the third most common cause of cancer death worldwide. To date, there are no published data from India on HCC, which is a common malignancy in the developing world. The overall relative distribution and in-depth study of occurrence of HCC in India has not been done. Our study was designed to determine the status of HCC in India. A multi-centric hospital-based study was conducted, during 2003-04. Patients in the age group of 18-60 years with HCC having single nodule with diameter greater than 2 cm with or without underlying cirrhosis, and who had been subjected to one of the modalities of treatment--ethanol injection, percutaneous aspiration, resection (resection with or without liver transplant), RFA, TACE, chemotherapy, ablation therapy--were analyzed. Of the 645 patients in the study, 348 (54.9%) were males and 297 (45.1%) were females, while the commonest age group affected was between 35-64 years (61.1%). The mean age was 47.4 years, while the mean duration of illness was 4.9 months. The majority of HCC was related to chronic viral infection, with HBV being the commonest cause. Amongst patients of HCV and hepatitis B virus coinfection, HCC was the major presenting complaint. Most of the patients were in Child Pugh class A. Amongst patients with alcoholic cirrhosis, HCC was the major presenting complaint. The most common presentation was a palpable abdominal mass.
