The first set of features that have been powered by this technology – new enhancements to Real Player Motion (RPM) Engine and AI – were discussed in detail in our last FUT International Update, as well as in our latest FREE FUT Update. The most important features of the technology include:

Enhanced Player Movements: Movements have been enhanced to ensure that players have the ability to move and evade opponents in new ways. Players are able to evade opponents with precision passes and controlled dummies, dink and dunk the ball, and play passes through the feet of a defender to open up goal scoring opportunities. Defensively, players can intercept the ball a few metres before they reach their goalkeeper. Dummies and controlled dummies are also able to change their angles of attack as necessary, and can use an airborne tackle. Enhanced Dummies: The functionality of the controlled dummy has also been significantly enhanced.

Instead of a player moving alone on the pitch, the controlled dummy has its own 3D physics system to enable realistic and varied dummy effects. Dummies can change their angles of attack and use a variety of tackle animations – all with a fully responsive dummy to the real-life movement of the player. Enhanced AI: Recognition of player movements through the feet of the goalkeeper as well as interceptions and deflections has been significantly enhanced. This means that defenders are able to easily intercept through balls with controlled dummies, a huge first step in understanding how to defend through the goalkeeper. Re-Skinned Player and Surface Animation: This has been a long-requested feature and one that has been talked about for years in the FIFA community. These two systems are a key element of RPM Engine. The FIFA Team is now making significant progress towards a goal of having an accurately re-skinned players and surfaces. In order to achieve this goal, the FIFA Team has recorded players from around the world playing a complete match in motion capture suits. The team is using this data to re-skin the player and surface data to make things look as life-like as possible. This isn't a trivial task. The FIFA Team has a full-time, dedicated team on this project and the entire team has been working on FIFA 22. We can expect significant improvements to this area in FIFA 22. Things that have improved include:

New Player Icons: To match the new skinning, more than 80 player icons have been created for the FIFA Team to use across all

Features Key:

Cool graphics assist as well, as extra animations, personality and style can be added when you see, talk to or perform an action on an object.
 - Reality-Infused Team and Squad Motion – New and improved AI systems ensure every player in the world makes the right decisions in real time. Bio-mechanics and motion-capture data, supported by new wearable motion capture suits, now allow players to make more accurate decisions in real time and react to challenges more realistic than ever before.
