The soundtrack to Quentin Tarantino's 1997 Jackie Brown is the third soundtrack by the Q: Calling a method from from a different view controller with different arguments I have 2 view controllers but they are both using different UIViews but some of the functions from one view are called in the other. I've created a segue between the view controllers but my issue is when I click a button to go to the 2nd view controller, I want to be able to call the method in the first view controller with the arguments that are on the 2nd view controller and when I click the other button to go back, I need to do it in reverse. How can I do this in swift 4? A: You need to add two buttons to the first view controller and connect them to the segues in the storyboard. Add a new segue between the first view controller and the second view controller. In the Attributes Inspector, make sure the segue is set to Show and not Modal. Then add two IBOutlet in the second view controller: @IBOutlet weak var secondViewController: UIViewController! @IBOutlet weak var otherButton: UIButton! Then, in your viewDidLoad() method of your first view controller, add two buttons in viewDidLoad() and connect the segues: @IBAction func goToSecondViewController(sender: UIButton) { let secondVC = SecondViewController() secondVC.otherButton.addTarget(self, action: #selector(goToFirstViewController), for: .touchUpInside) segue.perform(segue) } @IBAction func goToFirstViewController(sender: UIButton) { let firstVC = FirstViewController() firstVC.someArgument = 2 firstVC.someButton.addTarget(self, action: #selector(goToSecondViewController), for: .touchUpInside) segue.perform(segue) } Then, in your view

NEW DELHI: Tens of thousands of Indians are flocking into the country every month to take advantage of the much-touted government of India's job guarantee programme. The government's JAM (Jobs, Accountant, Mechanic) will give a monthly stipend of Rs 8,000 to around 10.5 million government employees. To be eligible, they must be the first employees who accept the government's higher public service commission (PSC) grade of Rs 24,000. Add to that the prospect of a generous pension, housing subsidy, and a food-for-training scheme and you have the recipe for an employee stampede. While there is no official count, the bulk of the 6d1f23a050
