The Intel Visual Fortran Compiler (IVFC) products are compilers that are based on the Visual Fortran compilers from Compaq and Digital that were based on the compilers produced by IVI and contain a variety of technologies developed by Intel. For more information, please refer to... Version 6.6b Notes. New features in version 6.6b include: Support for Power Station platform. The PowerStation is a PC-compatible, 1.5 GHz processor with 1 GB of RAM. The PowerStation supports Intel's PowerPlant extended operating system with Fortran-95 and Fortran-08 compilers. (6.6b is not supported on Alpha or MIPS platforms.) * New extension - C WITHPAGER The C WITHPAGER extension minimizes the number of BYTESTORE and CREATE statements required to transfer data to the disk. With this extension, the locations of the BYTESTORE and CREATE statements in the PNM files are dynamically computed by the compiler. The compiler can determine the maximum size of the input file and declare a "PAGEROOT" and "PAGERATE" constants that specify the last BYTESTORE and CREATE statements, and how to move the stream of data from the file to the disk. The compiler can modify a PNM file by using the PAGERATE and PAGEROOT constants. The compiler also can recompile a PNM file with the following semantics: Any code between BYTESTORE and CREATE statements is treated as a "PAGER" statement. This extension has been tested with the Compaq IGM compiler on IBM PC-compatible platforms with Windows NT/2000 as well as HP/UX, Sun Solaris, UNIX, etc. Previous extension - CALLABLE ARRAYS The CABARRAY extension reduces the number of BYTESTORE and CREATE statements required to transfer data to the disk. Instead of asking for a pointer to the first element of an array, the compiler requests for the first element of an array. The compiler updates the array bound to the pointer in multiple of the array size. When the array is first created, the compiler allocates a section of memory with a large size. After that, the compiler updates the array bound by the pointer and reallocates the array.
